19 STATEMENT OF FACTS

20 According to information provided by the government, which Mr. Ruiz-Montano does not adopt
21 or accept. Mr. Ruiz-Montano was arrested by Border Patrol near Calexico, California after a "Remote 22 Video Surveillance Operator" observed three people crossing over the international boundary fence. He
23 was apprehended by Border Patrol agents and taken to the Calexico Border Patrol Station where he was 24 arrested for a violation of Title 8, United States Code section 1326, Attempted Entry After Deportation. .

25 On March 27, 2008 and indictment was handed down by the Grand Jury of the Southern District
26 of California, charging Mr. Ruiz-Montano with a violation of Title 8, United States Code section 1326 (a)
27 and (b). A not guilty plea was entered on Mr. Ruiz-Montano's behalf.

II.

MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Mr. Ruiz-Montano moves for the production of the following discovery. This request is not limited to those items that the prosecutor knows of, but rather includes all discovery listed below that is in the custody, control, care, or knowledge of any “closely related investigative [or other] agencies.” See United States v. Bryan, 868 F.2d 1032 (9th Cir. 1989).

To date, defense counsel has received 28 pages of discovery. Mr. Ruiz-Montano respectfully requests that the Government be ordered to produce discovery because Mr. Ruiz-Montano has reason to believe that he has not received all the discoverable material in his case. Ms. Ruiz-Montano specifically requests production of a copy of the taped proceedings and any and all documents memorializing the deportation proceeding allegedly held and any other proceedings that the Government intends to rely upon at trial. This request includes discovery of materials known to the Government attorney, as well as discovery of materials which the Government attorney may become aware of through the exercise of due diligence. See FED. R. CRIM. P. 16.

Mr. Ruiz-Montano has also not received a full copy of his A-file. Mr. Ruiz-Montano specifically requests the documents memorializing the alleged deportation proceedings and any other proceedings that the Government intends to rely upon at trial.

Mr. Ruiz-Montano additionally requests that the Court order the Government to allow him the opportunity to review his A-file in its entirety. First, the A-file contains documentation concerning his alleged deportation. Part of Mr. Ruiz-Montano defense may be that his underlying deportation was invalid. The documents in the A-file would help illuminate the validity or futility of such a defense. For example, A-file documents typically contain biographical information. Such information is essential to determining whether Mr. Ruiz-Montano deportation was invalid.

Second, the Government will likely try to show at trial that a Government officer searched the A-file and did not find an application by Mr. Ruiz-Montano for permission to enter the United States. Mr. Ruiz-Montano anticipates that the Government will attempt to admit a “Certificate of Non-Existence of Record” against him, arguing that if Mr. Ruiz-Montano had ever applied for permission to enter the United States, such an application would be found in the A-file and because such an application is not in the A-file, Mr.

1 Ruiz-Montano must not have applied for permission to enter the United States.

2 Although the certificate might be admissible, the question of the thoroughness of the search
3 conducted by the Government of the A-file is, and should be, open to cross-examination. United States v.
4 Sager, 227 F.3d 1138, 1145 (2000) (error not to allow jury to “grade the investigation.”). Mr. Ruiz-Montano
5 should be able to review his A-file in order to see whether any application for lawful admission exists.
6 Moreover, Mr. Ruiz-Montano should also be able to verify whether other documents that would ordinarily be
7 in the A-file are “non-existent,” or otherwise missing from her A-file. Mr. Ruiz-Montano may assert a defense
8 that his application for lawful entry was lost or otherwise misplaced by the Government. He must be allowed
9 the opportunity to review his A-file and the manner in which it is being maintained by the Government in 10 order to present this defense.

12 III.
13 THE INDICTMENT MUST BE DISMISSED DUE TO ITS FAILURE TO ALLEGE AN OVERT
14 ACT COMMITTED BY MR. RUIZ-MONTANO

15 Mr. Ruiz-Montano has been charged with attempted entry, a violation of Title 8 U.S.C. § 1326. The 16 indictment fails to state an offense, since it does not allege that Mr. Ruiz-Montano committed an overt act --
17 a required element in “attempt” cases. See United States v. Gracidas-Ulibarry, 231 F.3d 1188, 1196 (9th Cir.
18 2000) (en banc). The Fifth Amendment provides that “[n]o person shall be held to answer for a capital, or 19 otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury.” U.S. Const. Amend. V.
20 An indictment’s failure to “recite an essential element of the charged offense is not a minor or technical flaw
21 . . . but a fatal flaw requiring dismissal of the indictment.” United States v. Du Bo, 186 F.3d 1177, 1179 (9th
22 Cir. 1999); see also, United States v. Pernillo-Fuentes, 252 F.3d 1030 (9th Cir. 2001).

23 The Ninth Circuit has recently held that “failure to allege any specific overt act that is a substantial
24 step toward entry is a fatal defect in an indictment for attempted entry following deportation under 8 U.S.C.
25 §1326.” United States v. Resendiz-Ponce, 425 F.3d 729 (9th Cir. 2005).

26 A. The Commission of an Overt Act Is a Required Element in “Attempt Crimes”

27 An overt act is required to protect the innocent from conviction for merely thinking about committing 28 a crime. “The common law meaning of ‘attempt’ is the specific intent to ‘engage in criminal conduct and ...
an overt act which is a substantial step towards committing the crime.’” Gracidas-Ulibarry, 231 F.3d at 1192,

1 citing United States v. Arbelaez, 812 F.2d 530, 534 (9th Cir.1987); accord United States v. Bailey, 444 U.S.
 2 394, 405 (1980); Wooldridge v. United States, 237 F. 775, 778-79 (9th Cir.1916) (collecting common law
 3 sources “holding that, to constitute an attempt, there must be the intent to commit a crime and some act done
 4 toward its consummation, and that the term ‘attempt’ signifies both an act and the intent with which it is
 5 done”); 2 Wayne R. LaFave & Austin W. Scott, Jr., Substantive Criminal Law § 6.2, at 18 (1986) (“The crime
 6 of attempt . . . [at] common law . . . consists of: (1) an intent to do an act or to bring about certain
 7 consequences which would in law amount to a crime; and (2) an act in furtherance of that intent which . . .
 8 goes beyond mere preparation.”).

9 The Ninth Circuit en banc has adopted the common-law definition of attempt and has held that “the
 10 elements of the crime of attempted illegal reentry into the United States under 8 U.S.C. § 1326 are: (1) the 11 defendant had the purpose, i.e., conscious desire, to reenter the United States without the express consent of 12 the Attorney General; (2) the defendant committed an overt act that was a substantial step towards reentering
 13 without that consent; (3) the defendant was not a citizen of the United States; (4) the defendant had previously
 14 been lawfully denied admission, excluded, deported or removed from the United States; and (5) the Attorney
 15 General had not consented to the defendant’s attempted reentry.” Gracidas-Ulibarry, 231 F.3d at 1196
 16 (emphasis added).

17 B. The Indictment Must Be Dismissed Because It Does Not Allege an Overt Act That
 18 Was a Substantial Step Which Corroborates the Mens Rea of the Charged Offense.

19 In an attempt to comply with Resendiz-Ponce, the indictment alleges that Mr. Ruiz-Montano
 20 “committed an overt act, to wit, crossing the border from Mexico into the United States, that was a substantial
 21 step towards committing the offense.”

22 However, merely stating that a particular act is a substantial step, however, does not satisfy the Ninth
 23 Circuit’s description of that element. The “purpose of [the] substantial step requirement in attempt crimes is 24 to corroborate the actor’s specific intent to commit the crime.” Walters v. Maass, 45 F.3d 1355, 1349 (9th
 25 Cir. 1995) (citing United States v. Plenty Arrows, 946 F.2d 62, 66 (8th Cir. 1991)). Thus, the government
 26 must allege and prove “culpable intent and conduct constituting a substantial step toward commission of the 27 crime that strongly corroborates that intent.” United States v. DeRosa, 670 F.2d 889, 894 (9th Cir. 1982)
 28 (citing United States v. Snell, 627 F.2d 186, 187 (9th Cir. 1980)). The language employed in the indictment’s substantial step allegation makes no reference to mens rea at all. Instead, it simply charges that Mr. Ruiz-Montano “committed an overt act, to wit, crossing the border from Mexico into the United States, that was a substantial step towards committing the offense.” The grand jury thus did not find, nor was it asked to find, “a substantial step toward commission of the crime that strongly corroborates [the requisite] intent.” See DeRosa, 670 F.2d at 894. The indictment therefore fails to state an offense against the United States.

Because “[f]ailure to allege an essential element of the offense is a fatal flaw not subject to mere harmless error analysis[,]” the Ninth Circuit “reverse[d] the judgment against Resendiz and direct[ed] the district court to dismiss the indictment without prejudice to reindict[.]” Resendiz-Ponce, 425 F.3d at 732-33 (citing United States v. Du Bo, 186 F.3d 1177, 1179 (9th Cir. 1999)). Accord United States v. Pernillo-Fuentes, 252 F.3d 1030, 1032 (9th Cir. 2001) (the remedy for the failure to allege an element of a section 1326 offense is dismissal). Accordingly, the instant indictment must likewise be dismissed because it fails to allege all essential elements of the offense of an attempted entry, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326.

The purpose of an overt act element, in an attempt indictment, is to protect the innocent, by showing that the prohibited actions must be more than just thought or “mere preparation.” See Rollin M. Perkins & Ronald N. Boyce, Criminal Law § 3.A.7, at 637 (3d ed. 1982). Without alleging an overt act the indictment fails to allege an essential element, and in doing so it fails to state an offense. This is a fatal flaw, and dismissal of the indictment is required. Du Bo, 186 F.3d at 1179.

III.

MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE ADDITIONAL MOTIONS

Mr. Ruiz-Montano has received 28 pages of discovery. He has not however received any audiotapes of his deportation proceeding as well as a photocopy of the A-file. As information comes to light, due to the government providing additional discovery in response to these motions or an order of this Court, Mr. Ruiz-Montano may find it necessary to file further motions. It is, therefore, requested that Mr. Ruiz-Montano be allowed the opportunity to file further motions based upon information gained through the discovery process. Specifically, because Mr. Ruiz-Montano’s collateral attack on the underlying deportations relies on the audiotapes of the deportation proceedings, he requests the opportunity to file further briefing to support his collateral attack once he has been provided an opportunity to listen to the proceedings.

V.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Ruiz-Montano respectfully requests that the Court grant the above motions.

Respectfully submitted,

Dated: March 28, 2008
